ROLES

HOA vs. property management

Two different roles working together. The board sets direction and makes decisions; the management company carries out day-to-day operations under the board's instruction.

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

Open books: where the money is

Every figure on the following slides comes straight from the association's own financial statements as of April 30, 2026, and current bank balances. Nothing is missing — here is exactly where things stand.

~$288K

in reserves

Bank + investment accounts

Under budget

Grounds running below plan

Positive

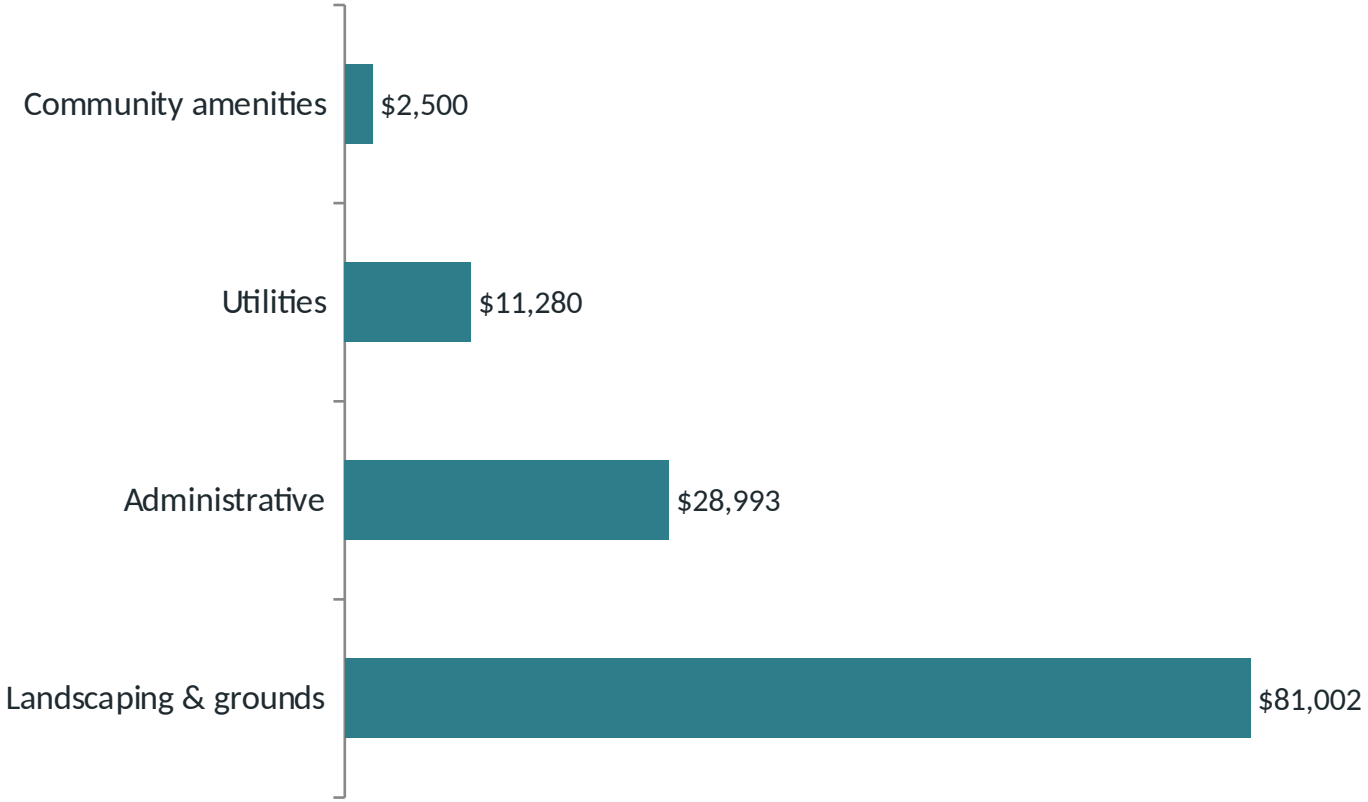

net income YTD

Slightly ahead of budget

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

Where your dues go

The 2026 operating budget by category. Dues fund the day-to-day care of the community — landscaping and grounds are by far the largest piece.

About that grounds number

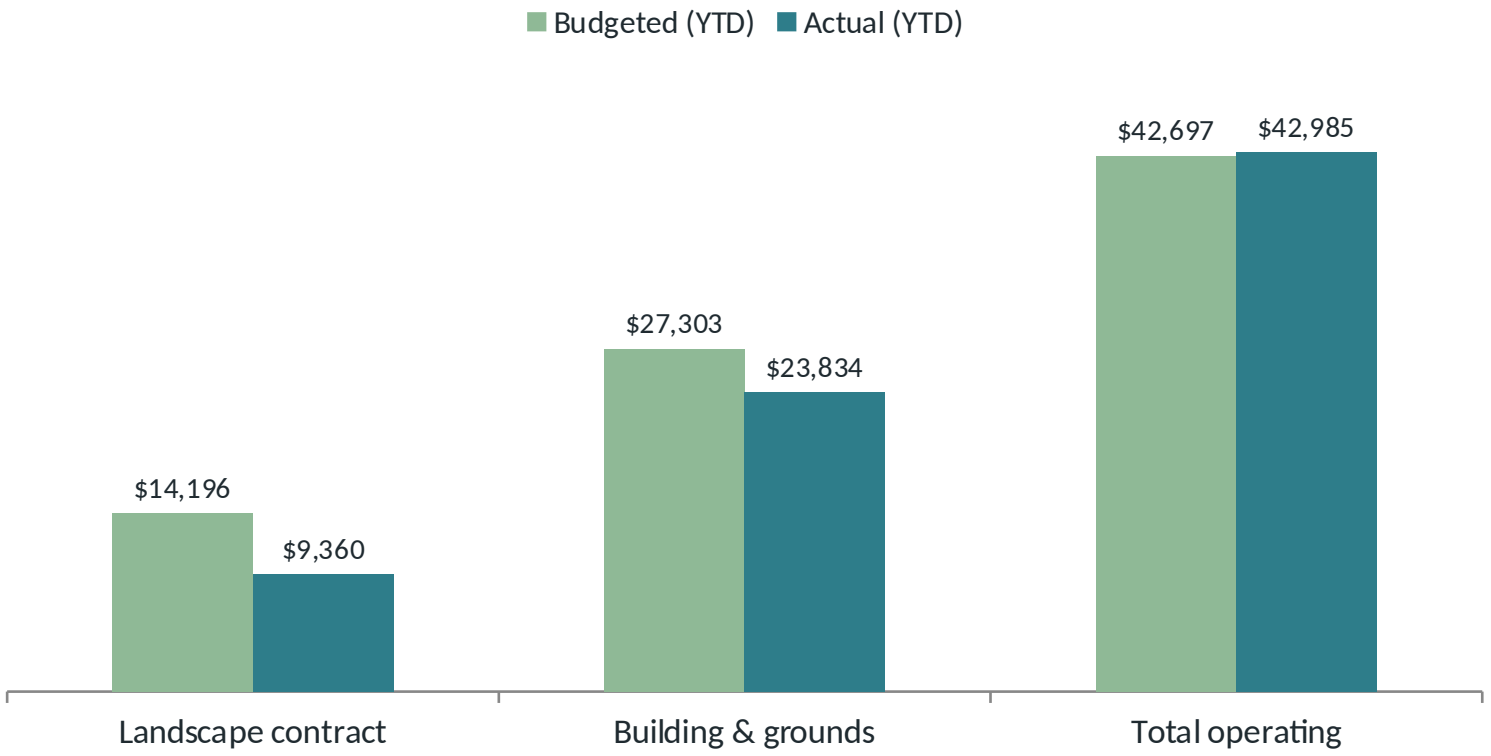

Two signed contracts cover the recurring work: about $28,080/yr for landscaping and $2,880/yr for pond monitoring — roughly $31,000 in fixed recurring cost.

The rest of the ~$81K budget is seasonal planting plus reserves for repairs and tree removals that mostly haven't been needed.

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

Budgeted vs. actual — the real story

A big inherited budget is not the same as money spent. Through April, the association spent less than budgeted across grounds — and overall stayed essentially on plan.

The takeaway

- Landscaping contract: under budget YTD
- Building & grounds: under budget YTD
- Overall operating: essentially on budget
- The gap was an inflated inherited budget — not missing money

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

A healthy reserve — on purpose

Reserves are the community's savings. A strong reserve is deliberate: it keeps dues stable and lets us maintain the neighborhood without surprise special assessments.

Total reserves

~$288,000

Held across the reserve bank account and a reserve investment account — and growing month over month.

Reserve bank account	~$186,000
Reserve investment account	~$102,000

Why it matters: a healthy reserve is what keeps your dues stable and protects the community from special assessments when big repairs come due.

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

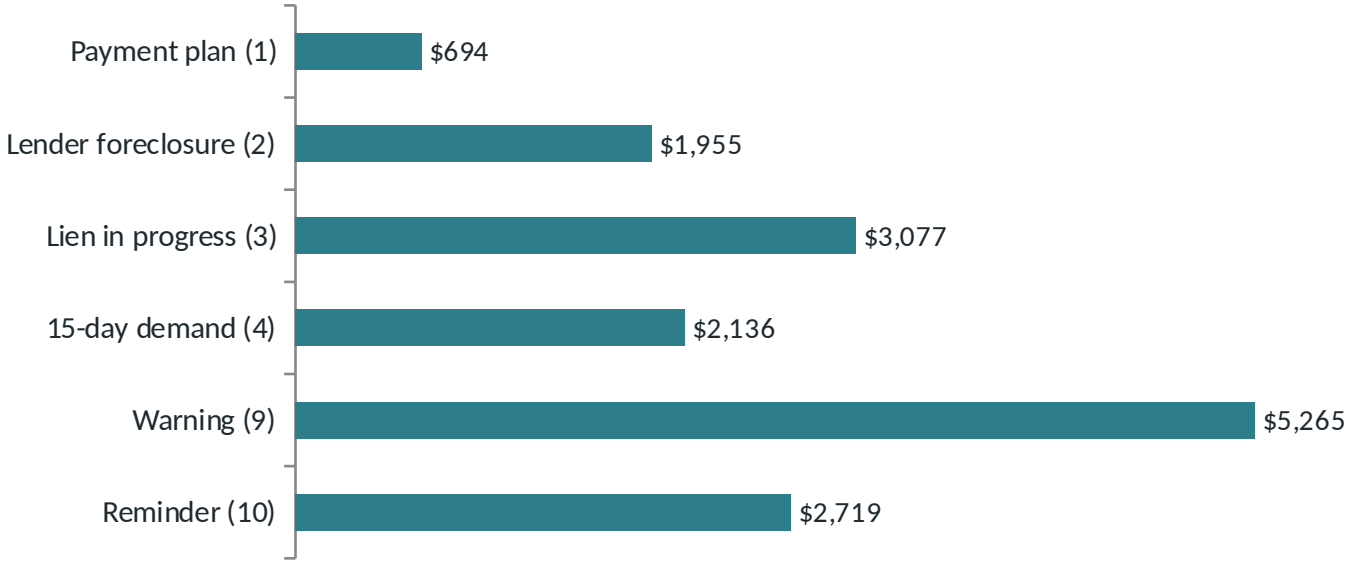

What's owed — and how we pursue it

Unpaid dues aren't a hole in the books — they're money owed to the association. We actively pursue collection so the cost doesn't fall on neighbors who pay on time. (No names or addresses are ever shared publicly.)

~$15,300
total outstanding

28
accounts

in active collection

We follow a process

Accounts move through clear stages — reminder, warning, demand letter, lien, and foreclosure — applied consistently to everyone. Seven accounts are currently in active collection.

Fairness to paying neighbors is the whole point.

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

Why some line items show $0 budgeted

This board has served about six months, after a two-month onboarding. We inherited a budget we didn't write. Some needed expenses had no budget line — so, with board and management approval, funds were drawn from existing accounts. These were approved decisions, not hidden ones.

Playground fence

Approved and paid from existing grounds accounts

Community cookout & social

Approved spending after years without events

New website & communications

Approved to reach homeowners directly

> Every one of these was approved by the board and the management company. Tonight's whole purpose is to show you the books — openly.

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

Approved, recorded, and under budget

A few specific expenses have drawn questions. Here is the full context — straight from the same financial statements, and now formally ratified in the board's June 3 minutes.

The $1,582 community social

Yes — this was not in the inherited budget. It was a board-approved decision, the first community event in years, and about 3% of year-to-date spending. It is recorded and was formally ratified on June 3.

The $5,257 pet-waste line

This was a budgeted line ($5,257 budget, $5,257 actual). The funds were a board-approved source for the playground fence — an approved expenditure, now ratified and recorded.

“At or over budget” items

Overall operating spending is essentially on budget, and most big lines run well under. A few small line items running over is normal — and far outweighed by the larger savings.

Every figure here comes from the financial statements anyone can read. Each item was a board decision — recorded, and now formally ratified.

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

How our dues compare

A look at nearby York-area single-family communities. We pay the least — while still offering a playground and walking trails that some same-priced neighbors don't have.

Community	Monthly dues	Amenities	Built with
Monterey Park Our community · 157 homes	$82	Playground + walking trails	Few amenities
KB Homes Nearby	~$86	Common area only (covered table)	No amenities
Brighton Springs York · single-family	~$99	Amenitized community	Amenities
Fergus Crossing York · single-family	~$102	Built with amenities	Amenities
Cannon Village York · single-family	~$114	Built with pool + cabana	Pool

Figures are approximate, from public new-home listings and community knowledge; single-family dues shown. Nearby townhome communities run higher (~$270–$279/mo) — a different product the HOA maintains far more of.

FINANCIAL TRANSPARENCY

A fair rate for what we have

Amenities are built into a community's design — and its dues. We were built on limited land with few amenities, so our dues stay low. That's not a shortfall; it's the deal our community was built on.

Lowest dues

At $82/mo, we pay the least of the nearby single-family communities — and below every one we compared.

Real amenities

We still have a playground and walking trails — more than some neighbors paying the same or more.

Priced to match

Communities charging more were built with pools and extras. We weren't — so we don't carry that cost.

> Bottom line: we pay a fair rate for what our community was built with — and we're getting good value for it.

HOW WE COMPARE

Why their budgets look bigger

If a neighboring HOA seems to have more money to spend, it usually isn't because they're better run — it's because they collect more in the first place. Here's what drives that.

More units paying in Communities that mix townhomes with single-family homes simply have more households contributing dues each month.

Townhomes pay much more

Townhome dues run far higher (~$270–$279/mo vs. our $82) — so a few townhomes add a large amount of monthly revenue.

More to maintain

Bigger budgets also mean bigger obligations: pools, cabanas, and extra amenities cost money to run all year.

The takeaway: we do more with less. Smaller, single-family, and amenity-light by design — so we keep dues low and still maintain the community well.

YOUR QUESTIONS

Submitted questions

Below are the questions homeowners submitted ahead of tonight's meeting, with the board's answers.

QUESTION

Why are our dues so high, and where does the money actually go?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

Our dues are $82 a month — the lowest of the comparable single-family communities nearby. Every dollar is accounted for in the financial statements we walked through earlier and that any homeowner can request.

Most of it covers landscaping and grounds, the management contract, insurance, and contributions to reserves. We are running under budget overall and posting a positive net income year-to-date — the books are open, and the numbers are in this presentation.

QUESTION

Why has landscaping cost so much? Does the budget match the market rate?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

The recurring, contracted grounds work runs about $31,000 a year — roughly $28,080 for landscaping and $2,880 for pond monitoring. Those are signed contracts a homeowner can verify against the financials.

The grounds budget is set near $81,000 because it also reserves for seasonal planting, trail repair, and tree removals that mostly have not been needed. We are spending well under that allowance — the gap is an inflated inherited budget, not missing money.

QUESTION

The common areas are not being maintained to standard. What is being done about it?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

This is fair feedback, and we hear it. Maintaining common areas to a consistent standard is part of what your dues pay for, and where the work has fallen short, that is on us to correct with our grounds vendor.

We are holding the landscaping contractor to the scope of their contract and following up on specific problem areas. If you see something that needs attention, report it through mpyork.com and it goes straight to the board.

QUESTION

Is street parking allowed or not? We have gotten conflicting guidance.

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

The default is no — our governing documents prohibit parking in the front yard and generally prohibit parking on the street within the community. That is why the guidance has felt inconsistent.

There is one narrow exception: a vehicle too large to fit on a driveway may park on the street directly in front of your own lot during daylight hours only, and must be in the garage or off the property at night. No vehicle may block a sidewalk, and oversized vehicles, boats, campers, and trailers must be screened out of sight.

QUESTION

What about speeding and other unsafe behavior in the neighborhood?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

We take safety seriously, and we share the concern about speeding on our streets. The board is exploring traffic-calming options, including speed bumps, with York County Public Works.

For unsafe driving or any conduct that is a safety or law-enforcement matter, the right first call is the county — the HOA cannot enforce traffic law, but we can advocate for the community and pursue calming measures within our authority.

QUESTION

Can I put multiple projects on one ARC request, or do I have to file separately?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

You can put as many items as you want on a single ARC request — you could submit your whole yard plan on one form. There is no need to file separately for each change.

Submitting a request before exterior work is still required either way, but bundling your projects means one request covers all of it.

QUESTION

A neighbor is not maintaining their lawn or home. How do I report it?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

For now, report it to the management company — Kuester handles violations and property-maintenance issues. Use the homeowner portal at Kuester.com, call (704) 973-9019, or email support@kuester.com. You do not need to confront your neighbor yourself, and the board is notified.

Every report is reviewed and the same standards apply to every home, so the process stays fair and consistent for everyone. Where a fix is needed, most situations are resolved with a friendly reminder rather than anything more.

QUESTION

Why are so many dues unpaid, and what is the board doing about it?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

About $15,000 in dues is currently outstanding across roughly 28 accounts. We are actively pursuing collection so the burden does not fall on the neighbors who pay on time.

We follow a clear, consistent process that escalates as needed — from reminders and warnings to demand letters, liens, and foreclosure where appropriate. A handful of accounts are in those active-collection stages now. We never identify individual homeowners publicly.

QUESTION

I am having financial hardship. Can I get help with my dues?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

Yes — for now, please reach out to the management company first, before an account falls behind. Contact Kuester through the homeowner portal at Kuester.com, by phone at (704) 973-9019, or by email at support@kuester.com, and the board will be notified so we can discuss the options available to you.

We would rather work with you early than see an account go to collections. Reaching out as soon as you know you are struggling gives us the most room to help.

QUESTION

What about individual requests — a clubhouse, mailbox canopies, a Hunter Street barrier, doors, AC units?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

Clubhouse: there is no available space in the community for one, and building it would require a special assessment, which the board is not pursuing.

Mailbox canopies: we are actively looking into options — one quote came in around $29,000 — and are still gathering information before any decision.

Hunter Street / South Pacific barrier: the only approved screening would be evergreen trees, and the scope is large (roughly 50 homes needing 6–7 trees each at $80+ per tree), so it is not something the board can fund at this time.

Doors, AC units, and other changes: submit an ARC request. The board reviews case by case, and where there is a documented need, a conditional approval can be granted — as happened in a recent case after several months of review.

QUESTION

Why is there a $38 ARC fee when other HOAs charge little or nothing?

THE BOARD'S ANSWER

Under our current management company, each ARC application carries a $38 fee, and that fee is paid by the homeowner every time you submit a request.

This is one of the reasons we are putting the management question to a community vote. The proposed alternative would carry no ARC fees — the board would review and approve requests directly, so submitting a request would still be required, but it would never cost you a fee. More on that next.
